A Man So Close To Woman

Music and Text by Juan Luis de Pablo Enríquez Rohen

The following poem is to be recited while the next music is performed at the piano:

There by the naked mill,
The Woman stood alone
The stars could not be gone
The Moon as well stood still.

Her voice to him do tell,
Of ancient rhymes of light,
Nailed in Love to fight,
What cannot come before,
The tale that can't be told.

Do still the man foretells
The wind of clear disasters,
A new but old emotion
That holds his voice so dear.

So one by one the stars,
Do blinking dance to him,
Appearing from the will
Of shinning life and feel.

A man so close to Woman
Loving her today.
